IV. PUBLIC FORUM (comments from students and the community)

V. INFORMATION ITEMS – Guests
A. AS Bookstore Presentation

Peg Godwin said that there have been a lot of changes: they hired a fiscal analyst and completed the upgrade of the server which has allowed them to do is protect their credit card data. They are working on rush trying to make it as smooth as possible. They have increased the number of books ordered ahead of time by giving students their class schedule and paying for them in advanced so they are packed for disbursement. This also helps students make sure they are getting the right books. They did almost a half million in profits on these kinds of transactions this year. They are working on the look and feel of the store. They are trying to make sure that Western goods are right up at the front of the store. New students are their biggest purchasers and August is their biggest month of sales. They are seeing more electronic readers for books and are looking at how they will affect the textbook market. Also online resources for textbooks are making it competitive. Godwin said that Western’s textbooks are a good value because they are the right textbooks, whereas ordering them online students can get the wrong addition. They are also looking at textbook rentals. There are some issues with inventory, because the store still owns the books so they show up as being in the inventory. Renting is a way to keep the initial investment on the books down to somewhere in the 50% range. Ikegwuoha asked about the condition of the book upon return. They are having discussion about this but the Bookstore is used to buying used books and should be able to categorize what is “normal” use. There will also be some penalty for not returning their books. She feels that Apple is very difficult to deal with and so they will probably not be carrying Apple products. They are working with the Registrar’s Office to show the price of textbooks, this will help establish the approximate cost of classes at the time of registration. Higher Ed Authorization Act compliance in this area will happen by July 2010. They will be coming in close to last year’s sales revenue and in this financial climate they are please with this. They are also looking at using more local vendors, such as Woods and Brenthaven. Godwin will work on the Bookstore Advisory Committee this summer because she feels this is important but needs to learn a little more about the committee members. The AS Bookstore now has a Facebook page. Rinonos-Diaz asked about the issue with having professors turn in their book orders on time. Godwin said that it is getting better; some of the problem is that Adjunct Professors don’t get assigned until the end. She said that one of the hard things is if they don’t receive orders by buyback they cannot buy books back from students.
